

our story

ACOUSTIC DIMENSIONS began in 1991 as a lot of great companies begin...with a conversation. An acoustician and an audio designer began to talk about what a firm would look like that designed acoustics and performance systems holistically instead of looking at them as separate parts.

In the past nineteen years, they have been joined by all of the talented people who make up Acoustic Dimensions. Acousticians, audio designers, video and broadcast professionals all working together with a passion for creating places where people can share an experience.

Our interdisciplinary team of consultants and designers are located in offices in Dallas, New York, San Diego and the UK working together using the latest conferencing and collaboration technology.

We currently have twenty-two LEED Accredited Professionals on staff. Because we believe in "being before doing" our green initiative began within our own walls. Over the past several years, we have implemented a recycling program, decreased paper usage by 75% and are pursuing LEED Certification on our new Dallas offices.

We are both an AutoCAD and a REVIT house and have depth internationally with projects in over 20 countries.

Mostly, we are a team who enjoy working together. Iron sharpens iron. And perhaps one of the most significant things about Acoustic Dimensions is that we are better together than any of us could possibly be on our own.
